

familiar with them. We could see them quite readily.

"Could you see the vessels in the inner picket line at night?"

"Not without the aid of searchlights."

On direct examination, Mr. Rayner asked Lieut. Webster concerning the bearing of the Iowa and the Texas on the morning of July 3, at the beginning of the battle. The witness said they were about the starboard beam of the Brooklyn, the Texas being to the right of the Iowa. The Brooklyn was headed, he said, north or north-northwest. In reply to another question by Mr. Rayner, he stated that after the surrender of the Colon July 3 he had gone to the foremast to look for other ships. He had only seen the Oregon and the Texas. The smoke of other vessels was visible, but not the vessels themselves.

When Lieut. Webster was excused, Lieutenant-Commander Griffin was called. He gave details of the blockade campaign, saying that the distance of the blockading line there varied from three to seven miles, being farther out at night.

Breaking of the voyage from Cienfuegos to Santiago, the witness said, was "heavy," and that there was a "short, choppy sea." He also said that the heavy sea had impeded the fleet by delaying the smaller vessels, especially the Eagle.

TIRE OF DELAY.

Asked by Mr. Rayner concerning a conversation between Commodore Schley and the commander of the Eagle, the witness said:

"I was present when the conversation took place, although I cannot give the exact words. When the Eagle came up astern of the Brooklyn, the commodore expressed his dissatisfaction with the vessel and told him in substance that he could not delay the squadron any longer on his account, and that he wanted him to proceed to Jamaica for the purpose of refueling."

"Was kind of weather was the Eagle making, on May 24, when that conversation took place?"

"As I expressed it, heavy weather; a short, choppy sea, and the Eagle and Vixen were both pitching considerably."

"Did you hear the commanding officer of the Eagle talk to the commodore about coal on that occasion?"

"I do not remember."

"You heard the whole conversation?"

"I did, but I do not remember that he asked permission to coal. It would not have been possible, at least, it would not have been safe."

At Santiago, the witness said, the blockading line was a mile or two closer in at night than during the day, and on May 19 the fleet stood out three or four miles. There were picket boats inside the line, but he did not see them.

"Did you ever have any conversation with Commodore Schley before July 3, relating to the Brooklyn going to Guantanamo for coal?"

SCHLEY WAS A STAYER.

"In substance, I mentioned the fact that other ships of the squadron were in the habit of going to Guantanamo for coal. We had had some difficulty in coaling in the open off Santiago. The commodore replied that he had been asked on several occasions if he would like to go to Guantanamo, where he could coal quickly and give the officers and men a rest from the strain of the blockade."

Referring to the battle of July 3, the witness said that he had been in charge of the order of attack and that it was his duty to look after the lower decks. Consequently, he had not seen the great deal of the fleet.

He said that he had seen the Vixen going ashore, and that, looking back from the Brooklyn, the Vixen was seen to be firing at the shore. He said he had seen two other Spanish ships on fire, with the Colon none distant upon the starboard beam and firing occasionally. Then he went into the foremast, where Commodore Schley, Capt. Cook and Commander Mason were standing, remaining there until the Colon surrendered. The Oregon was, he said, floating very close to the Brooklyn.

CHEERY MESSAGES.

"Were any cheering or encouraging messages sent among the men that you knew of? By whom and what were they?"

"I had a messenger who made frequent trips to the gun deck, and who reported to me what was happening, and conveyed this information to the men of my division in the different handling rooms."

"Were any of these messages of sufficient importance that you would like to speak of them?"

"One message which seemed to cheer the men below very much was that there were three Spanish ships on our starboard beam, all firing at us."

"You do not know who sent these messages, who gave them, do you?"

"I look it for granted."

Judge-Advocate Lemly then interrupted the witness by stating that it did not appear that Commodore Schley had sent these messages, which brought a statement from Mr. Rayner that he would prove, when Admiral Schley came on the stand.

Commander Griffin said that when the Colon gave up the conflict, the Oregon was close on the Brooklyn's starboard quarter and that the Texas was close on the Brooklyn's starboard beam.

"Can you speak of the conduct, bearing and manner of Commodore Schley during the engagement in which you saw him?"

COOL AS A CUCUMBER.

"He impressed me as being remarkably cool, considering what had just occurred. He was perfectly natural in manner and bearing."

On cross-examination, Capt. Lemly questioned the witness closely concerning the well-known trip to Santiago, the meeting away from the Eagle and coal, and the blockade at Cienfuegos. Reading from the Brooklyn log, he said that at the time of the Eagle's departure the Commodore was in a moderate state of mind.

He also, at Capt. Lemly's request, again detailed the position of the Oregon, when the Commodore was ordered, saying that vessel was from six hundred to eight hundred yards on the starboard quarter of the Brooklyn, slightly in shore. The two vessels were headed on practically parallel lines.

Mr. Hanna asked: "Did you hear Commodore Schley say anything about leaving Cienfuegos?"

"I did not."

"Or coaling difficulties?"

WISE DECISION.

"I do not remember. I know he was always extremely anxious, and seemed to coal whenever there was an opportunity. I do not remember any particular conversation. The conversation about going to Guantanamo impressed me particularly, because afterward I thought it was such a wise decision."

Mr. Hanna asked the witness whether the "Flying Squadron" had proceeded with dispatch on the voyage from Cienfuegos to Santiago, and the witness replied:

"Yes, as a unit, until we made the turn to the westward on May 24. The slowest ship fixed the speed, and that was six or seven knots an hour."

Then in your answer you except retrograde?"

"I do not."

BOUND FOR SANTIAGO.

Having said that when the fleet left Cienfuegos it was the general understanding that it was bound for Santiago, the witness, under questions by Mr. Hanna, stated that the fleet was headed east when it stopped south of Santiago May 24. He said in reply to a further question that if the squadron had continued as then headed it would have landed "anywhere to the eastward."

The court asked: "Was it the roughness of the sea that made it difficult for the Yale to take the Merimac in tow or that caused the hawser to part?"

"I am not sure."

By the court: What difficulties did the Brooklyn have in coaling off Santiago, prior to June 17?

"I do not think there was any difficulty during those dates."

Mr. Rayner: Isn't it a fact that the Brooklyn did not coal for several days, and were not coaling breeches rigged on all of the ships in order to coal?

"That is the case of the Brooklyn. I cannot say about the other ships."

ABELE'S RECOLLECTIONS.

Lieutenant-Commander Griffin was excused and Ensign C. A. Abele, who, a naval cadet, served as a junior watch officer on the Brooklyn in the Santiago campaign, was called.

Mr. Abele said there was a heavy surf at Cienfuegos while the "Flying Squadron" lay there. He said that when the fleet was made toward Santiago the weather was rough and unrelieved, though it was not dark, and he could not see the ships.

Morro Castle was in sight, he said, upon the arrival of Santiago. "Do you recollect about the blockade of May 24 in front of the harbor?"

"Yes. At night we steamed back and forth in front of the harbor at a distance of five or six miles. At night we saw nothing, and the system of signals was that used in the English navy, blinking white light, and I judged it was the Colon signaling to the fort. It happened on two occasions."

"Could you see that plainly?"

"Very plainly, indeed."

BATTLE OF JULY 3.

The witness in describing the battle of July 3 said that he had had charge of the port battery on the main deck forward, and that the Spanish vessels first came out of the harbor he could not train his guns on them because of dark shadows. Later he opened fire, and he observed that the leading Spanish ship held steadily on the Brooklyn's port bow for some time and then turned to the starboard, and the range then was 1400 yards, and the last range at which he fired during the day was 1100 yards.

The witness said that the relative positions of the Vixen, the Colon and the Brooklyn when the starboard battery of the Brooklyn was fired by the witness at a range of 1100 yards. He replied that the two Spanish ships were "well about the starboard beam of the Brooklyn, the Vixen being ahead of the Colon."

This, he said, was after the turn of the Brooklyn.

Ensign John Halligan, Jr., who served as a junior watch officer on the Oregon, was then called, and the court took a recess for luncheon.

had heard no guns at Cienfuegos, but had seen the signal lights ashore.

CONVERSATION WITH SCHLEY.

Mr. Rayner asked the witness if he had had any conversation with Commodore Schley during the night before the engagement of May 11.

He replied that he had a conversation with the commodore on the morning of July 3.

On the signal bridge of the Brooklyn, after dinner," he said, "when the commodore came upon the bridge, and during the course of the conversation stated to me: 'Tomorrow we are going in with the ships not coaling to bombard at long range to develop the exact location of the batteries and to form an estimate of their strength.' He said he was not going to meet the entire vessel, but he was more of the Spanish ships until the Brooklyn had completed a turn, when all the enemy's vessels became visible. He said he then looked back, and had been able to see only one of the American ships."

Mr. Rayner asked: "Did you remember that incident very distinctly, because it seemed to me that we were fighting with the Spanish ships alone?"

He said he remembered the incident several times, and the lowest was 800 yards, while the highest figure was 2000 yards. The Commodore, he said, had followed the course of the shore in his westward flight, and that the Commodore's ship was the Vixen, and she had attempted to shield her sister ship.

Mr. Rayner, in reply to a question from Mr. Hanna, said that he had not seen Commodore Schley during the engagement, but that he had seen him at the close of the battle. He said that he had seen the commodore's appearance was at the close of the battle.

He was hardly able to talk, and complained of an irritation in his throat from the effects of the smoke, and that he had been coughing. His victory. He was so choked with smoke he could hardly make himself understood.

NOTHING TO HIS DISCREDIT.

Taking the witness for cross-examination, Mr. Hanna asked:

"Have you anything in your knowledge relating to any conversation with the commodore of anything else?"

"I can only say this," was the reply, "unless you ask me specific questions, that I am not sure of anything. I think that the commodore's appearance was at the close of the battle."

He was hardly able to talk, and complained of an irritation in his throat from the effects of the smoke, and that he had been coughing. His victory. He was so choked with smoke he could hardly make himself understood.

CHEERS FOR THE COMMODORE.

The next witness was James A. Hand, an ensign who had served on the Brooklyn as a naval cadet. He testified that on the day of the battle of July 3, he was at the central station and received from Commodore Schley a cross-examination of the commodore to the men, and that one of the officers present when the conversation occurred, but the signal officer and two or three men were within hearing.

ing for the shore, she bore between one and two points abait the beam. The distance at that time was about 2000 yards, as I remember.

Ensign Marble was then excused, and Medical Director Fitzsimmons, who was chief surgeon of the "Flying Squadron" May 11.

BROOKLYN ALMOST ALONE.

Dr. Fitzsimmons gave an account of the battle of July 3 from his standpoint. He had observed the engagement from the gundeck of the Brooklyn. He said that the first of the Spanish ships came out of the harbor at Santiago, it appeared to stand still, and he had been able to see the entire vessel, and then more of the Spanish ships until the Brooklyn had completed a turn, when all the enemy's vessels became visible. NEW HEAD OF MORMONISM.

Joseph F. Smith Called to High Place.

Is Nephew of Founder of the Church.

Has Been Prominent in the Councils of the Sect for Many Years.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] SALT LAKE, Oct. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] For the sixth time in the history of the Mormon church that organization has a new head. He is Joseph F. Smith, nephew of Joseph Smith, founder of the Latter Day faith, and a son of Hyrum Smith, who was assassinated at Carthage, Ill., in 1844, with his prophet brother in June, 1844.

The new president has been famous in the affairs of Mormonism since his youth, and is widely known as a man of great strength of character. He has been prominent in the church since his boyhood days, when he was sent amid the persecutions and drivings to which his co-religionists were subjected in the turbulent times that then prevailed. He came to Utah in 1848, one year after the arrival of the pioneer band under Brigham Young. Although but 10 years of age, he drove an ox team across the plains to the promised land, and walked more than a thousand miles. He was educated in the school of adversity, and by the flickering light of tallow dips and pine knots, succeeded in getting an education better than many men have secured in colleges and universities. He was left an orphan soon after reaching the mountain home of his people, and in 1854 was called on a mission to the Sandwich Islands. He started, with other missionaries, over the southern desert to California, whence he set sail for his destination. At that time he was but 15 years of age, but he took up the study of the native tongue, and soon mastered it. He remained in the islands for several years, after which he returned to San Bernardino, from which place he drove a team to Salt Lake City. From that period he advanced rapidly, and since that time has filled numerous responsible positions in the church, both in the United States and in Europe. He has been an apostle, one of the quorum of twelve, since 1847. He has been in the first presidency in the capacity of counselor since 1889, when he was called to that capacity by President Wilford Woodruff and later by Lorenzo Snow, who died one week ago. His associate counselor to both these presidents was the late George Q. Cannon, who died in California some months since.

President Smith was chosen at a meeting of the twelve apostles today, and immediately selected for his counselors John R. Winder and Anton H. Lund, both veteran church workers. He was also named trustee in trust, a position which makes him the business agent of the church. His elevation to the office of president left a vacancy in the quorum of twelve, of which body Brigham Young, son of the founder of the pioneers, was made president.

A special conference of the church was called for November 10, at which these actions will be submitted for ratification. It is expected that not less than twenty-five thousand members of the church will be present.

NEGRO AT HIS TABLE.

President Roosevelt Not Ashamed of Booker Washington.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A special to the Press from Washington says the public announcement today of the President's dinner invitation to Booker T. Washington, the negro president of Tuskegee Institute, on Wednesday evening, has created a sensation. There is no criticism of the President among the members of the Southern contingent in the capital, who predominate in the recess season, but they are undeniably surprised at the innovation thus established.

It is said to be the first time that a colored American citizen has dined with the President in the White House.

In Mr. Washington's case it is nothing new for him to be entertained at a white man's table. He has been honored in the north and in Alabama and elsewhere in the south, repeatedly by invitations to banquets given by the best Democratic citizens.

His acknowledged good work and sensible, self-respecting views have won for Mr. Washington a standing that is as unique as remarkable.

President Roosevelt's courage in making a break in White House traditions is commended even by those in official and unofficial life who would hesitate long to follow his example.

SEASON'S SEAL CATCH.

Only Schooner Out Eleven Months Has Only Captured Five Hundred—World's Catch Is Fifty Thousand.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.] VICTORIA (B. C.) Oct. 11.—A little breeze which sprang up this morning brought five schooners of the Bering seal fleet of this season and a sixth schooner which has been on a cruise since last December, covering an immense territory. The Bering Sea fleet has an average catch a little lower than last season, accounted for by the skippers by the unfavorable weather and consequent restlessness of the seal herds. No accidents were reported to the schooners.

The schooner which has been on such a long cruise is the May Taylor, which for eleven months out has a catch of only 500. Leaving here in December, she went down off the California coast, then to the Japanese coast, Japan Sea, Gulf of Tartary, Copper Islands and Bering Sea. Her captain reports that seals were plentiful in the Japan Sea, but he got in too late. The Bering fleet, it is expected, will all be back within a fortnight.

The Bering Sea catch is about 15,000 which, with the 7000 taken on the coast by Victoria schooners, 10,000 taken by Victoria Japanese schooners, and 10,000 taken

TWO VALUES.

HERE are two values to every purchase—what it costs and what it pays you. Cork costs 8 cents a pound, but if you are drowning half a mile from shore, its value would be "not what you pay for cork, but what cork saves you." When a woman buys soaps she often confuses the two values. She sees only what she pays. She overlooks what she receives. Now a single cake of Ivory Soap pays back from ten to twenty times its cost in the saving it effects. Test it yourself! Vegetable Oil Soap. Ivory white. It floats!

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Los Angeles Ebell. The literature section of the Ebell Society, under the leadership of Mrs. William Dunn, met yesterday morning and began the study of Washington Irving. Mrs. C. W. Allen gave an outline of Irving's life. Miss Evelyn Hammon read a paper on "The Sketch Book." Miss E. L. Hobbs reviewed "Bracebridge Hall," and Mrs. F. A. Demers "The Alhambra."

Wednesday Morning Club. The Shakespeare section of the Wednesday Morning Club met at the usual hour. A short time was given to quotations by the class, after which the study of "Coriolanus" was continued. Mrs. J. D. Lowe, piano; "Nocturne" (Fried); Mrs. W. H. Jamison; song, "Slumber Sea" (Chisholm); Mrs. George M. Williams; song, "Down the Vale" (Moir); Mrs. Chick.

Alhambra Club. The Wednesday Afternoon Club of Alhambra met in the clubrooms and were called to order by the president, Mrs. T. N. Lord. After the reading of the minutes Mrs. Lou V. Chapin presided. The subject of the afternoon was American composers and Indian music. Following is the programme: Piano solo, "Salome" (William Lorne); Mrs. Conklin; duet, "In Meadows Green" (L. P. Brackett); Mrs. Lee and Miss Allen; reading, "Lenora Jackson"; Mrs. Coleman; solo, "Rondo Capriccioso"; Mrs. Lashbrook; quartette, "Lullaby" (Hawley); Mrs. Lee, Sutton, Hayward and Pitkin; paper by Mrs. Browning, "Can America Produce an Artist?" followed by an example from Gottschalk entitled, "The Banjo"; reading, "Indian Music"; Mrs. Butt; informal talk by Mrs. Blaisdel concerning incidents in the career of Miss Nordica.

Corvina Club. The Corvina Monday Afternoon Club held its last meeting at the home of Mrs. W. M. Griswold on Second street, a full attendance of the membership being present. The department of current events was again conducted by Mrs. E. G. Clapp, this department being assigned to an individual member for an entire month. A very thorough and exhaustive paper was prepared and read by Mrs. L. L. Ratekin on "Pre-historic Americans," and another paper, the "Mound Dwellers and Cliff Dwellers," was read by Mrs. W. B. Thorne.

Twenty Years Proof. Tutt's Liver Pills keep the bowels in natural motion and cleanse the system of all impurities. An absolute cure for sick headache, dyspepsia, sour stomach, constipation and kindred diseases. "Can't do without them" R. P. Smith, Chilesburg, Va. writes I don't know how I could live without them. Walk-Over $3.50 Shoes at

Here's Another New One.

Nothing radical about it; not a cure for misshapen feet; merely a gentleman's shoe—good form in both the sense of shape and meaning of style. A shoe that hasn't an equal anywhere under $5.00; we charge but $3.50.

Of course you want all like this particular shape, so we have ready all the other good styles in tan, black and patent leather for men and women.

HARD WORK.

It Tests the Quality of Both Blood and Muscles.

There are grades even in hard work. The active labor may not be greater in one case than in another, but the conditions under which the work is done intensify the strain upon the entire body. To work in the harvest field, under a hot sun, is, after all, a haphazard occupation. To work in a stock hole, deep in the bowels of an ocean liner, or under ground in some basement, imposes far more strain and produces greater exhaustion than the hardest work in the field on the hottest of July days.

Vital statistics tell the story. The average life of the man in the stock hole, the rolling mill, the blast furnace, the glass factory, is far below the average life of the open air worker.

Yet the average life of these hard working men could be considerably prolonged, if once and for all they would learn the force of that Biblical statement, "The blood is the life." If a man seeks to prolong his life, he must take account of his blood—for that is the vital fluid.

WAITING FOR THE WORST.

The chief cause of a physical breakdown is often the fact that people put off giving themselves proper care. They don't want to spend the money for medicine, or they don't feel quite sick enough to want to take it. They feel languid, "played out," as they say, and when the day's work is over there isn't a bit of "go" left in them. That's the time when the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery means a new grip on life, and the prevention of more serious disease.

"It has been five years since I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' written Dr. J. E. Hoffman, Oregon. I was told to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and after I had taken fourteen bottles I was permanently cured. It has been a year since I stopped taking your medicine and my case has never appeared since. Your medicine produced a wonderful cure, and I hope others suffering as I did, will take it and be relieved of their suffering."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Advice is free on receipt of stamp to pay expense of mailing only. This great work on family medicine and household hygiene, contains more than a thousand large pages and over 100 illustrations. Send one-cent stamp for the cloth-bound volume, or only a stamp for the book in paper cover. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

UR System of Removable Bridge Teeth

Do not extract with the large suction plate. Any number of teeth can be put in without extracting any good work you may have, and in the root of the maxilla. The teeth are made of metal and cannot be loosened, coughed or sneezed out. The teeth are anchored in the mouth, yet are removable and take up very little room—only a narrow ridge across the edge of the gum.

This method is especially adapted where all the lower teeth are lost, and is a well known fact that the dental profession have nothing successful to offer in its place; and furthermore, partial lower plates have no bearing on the maxilla, and are made by any known method. The bridge is constructed and the maxilla is supported by the bridge, and the maxilla is supported by the bridge, and the maxilla is supported by the bridge.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14, 1900. Dr. Schiffman extracted twenty-two teeth for me without pain and has made both upper and lower plates, which have proved perfectly satisfactory in every way.

W. H. LAYNE, West Hollywood, Cal.

Dr. Schiffman extracted five teeth for me without pain, and made me an upper and lower plate which are a perfect success. It gives me much relief, and is really a satisfactory success of his profession and his maxilla as a result of plates. Yours respectfully, E. W. EDSON, Pasadena, Cal.

I take pleasure in saying that I have had twenty teeth extracted by Dr. Schiffman without pain, and a full plate made which is perfectly satisfactory.

W. H. LAYNE, West Hollywood, Cal.

It will be well worth your time to see our display of up-to-date Dentals. Work on your teeth at our expense. Dr. Schiffman's Dental Co., 107 North Spring.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Michigan Reception.
 At Blanchard Hall Annex this evening will be a reception to all former Michigan people in Los Angeles, and to visitors from that State. The Michigan Society will be the host. A program of music and literary exercises has been arranged, to open at 8 o'clock, and light refreshments will be served.

Woman on Citizenship.
 Miss Myra H. Strawn will address the Central W.C.T.U. this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Temperance Temple on "Citizenship, Its Qualifications and Possibilities." Miss Strawn is a graduate of the University of Chicago, has studied at Geneva, Switzerland, and comes recommended as a thinker and speaker.

Rugby for Cannon Cora.
 Frank Ferraro, a young boy, was arrested at River Station yesterday afternoon by Watchman Kettler, and was placed in the County Jail, charged with the act of stealing a can of corn from a freight car. He expects to be impelled him to steal the corn.

South Methodist Dedication.
 The dedication of Bellevue Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will take place at 11 a.m. Sunday. Bishop W. W. Duncan of Spartanburg, S. C., will preside. He has been conducting the annual denominational conference at Geneva, Switzerland, and comes recommended as a thinker and speaker.

What to See.
 A comprehensive guide book to Los Angeles and vicinity has just been issued under the name of the International Investments Company. Hensie building, for free distribution. The text is by De Fuiton Gildon, and is in the form of a booklet. It is in the form of a booklet. It is in the form of a booklet.

Trying Them On.
 The semi-annual civil-service examination for the various departments of the United States government are to be held next Tuesday at Turner Hall, No. 211 South Main street. Those who filed application prior to the 12th inst. will be examined, but no further applications will be accepted. These examinations include every position from bottom to top in the government civil service.

White Memorial Design.
 Frank H. Olmsted, president of the Southern California Engineers and Architects Association, has named D. Cunningham, civil engineer, and Sumner P. Hunt, architect, as the Advisory Committee from the association to cooperate with the Executive Committee of the White Memorial fund in the selection of a suitable design for a memorial.

Isane Desire to Disrobe.
 M. Gray was moved with a wild desire to remove his clothing early last evening at No. 708 Turner street, although that is far from the city side. The occupants of the house telephoned for an officer and a policeman found Gray acting more boisterous on the way to the City Jail, and on his arrival there was booked with a charge of insanity.

Vermont-Avance Blast.
 The explosion of a coal-oil lamp at 3:45 o'clock yesterday morning started a fire at the residence of J. P. Badgley, No. 321 Vermont street. Before the fire department subdued the blaze the building was damaged to the extent of $1,000, and a million in its contents. The house was insured, but the loss on the contents is total. Mr. and Mrs. Badgley and son had a narrow escape.

W.C.A. Convention.
 The Southern California convention of Young Women's Christian Associations will open at the First Methodist Episcopal Church this evening and be concluded Sunday afternoon. This evening's programme included addresses of welcome by Mrs. Frank A. Dawney and Rev. Dr. R. S. Cantine, a response by Miss Agnes Elliott, a solo by Mr. Sumner and an address by Mrs. W. E. Curtis of Malibu.

After Half a Century.
 Mr. and Mrs. Edward Estabrook of Eldora, Iowa, are in Los Angeles to spend the winter. Mr. Estabrook, now 82, was born in 1810, and spent a year at Lancaster—now Placerville. He was at one time in the Wisconsin Legislature, but for years has been a resident of Iowa. Though almost 70 years of age, he is active, alert and well preserved, and recalled vividly his boyhood in the pioneer settlements, and his long overland trip to California more than half a century ago.

BREVITIES.
 Send donations of cast-off clothing, furniture or food supplies to the Good Samaritan department of the Bethlehem Institutional Church, Vignes and Ducommun street, or telephone John 24, and wagon will call. Office hours during summer months 11 to 12 daily.

GENEROUS WOMAN CRUELLY WRONGED.

FOLLOWING the Golden Rule, when those with whom she has dealt have practiced upon her the policy of "Do others as they will do you," has brought Mrs. Charles H. Haas to the brink of absolute poverty from a position of comparative affluence.

Mrs. Haas lives alone in half of a small cottage at No. 1519 West Eighth street. She is 84 years old, almost blind, rapidly losing her sense of feeling, and barely able to walk with the assistance of an umbrella handle, which she uses as a cane.

Fifteen years ago, when she was left alone in the world by the death of her husband, she had $1000. She was good-hearted, kind and beneficent, and an church of which she was a member and where she worshiped, needed money, so she loaned it $1000; this, too, she says, without security.

For a time the church paid interest. Then the payments ceased and the church failed. Next the bank failed, and Mrs. Haas's all was gone, except her cottage and two lots on Eighth street. She moved into one side of the little house, and rented the other half. Then she sold one of the lots next to the cottage, the last one save that on which her home stands.

Meantime she had made a will. One day an agent came to the house and told her that on account of a mistake having been made in that document it was necessary for her to sign an amended will.

She had forgotten just how the will

She moved into one side of the little house, and rented the other half. Then she sold one of the lots next to the cottage, the last one save that on which her home stands.

Meantime she had made a will. One day an agent came to the house and told her that on account of a mistake having been made in that document it was necessary for her to sign an amended will.

She had forgotten just how the will

may prey for schemers and unprincipled persons.

She loaned money without security, gave some away, sold her property for less than its value, because she thought her purchasers were poorer than she, and gradually her savings of a lifetime slipped away. Now she is almost penniless, and is dependent upon the charity of neighbors.

Friends have intervened in her behalf, she has secured a return of a very small amount of her money, and, through the intervention of the Pioneer Society of Los Angeles and others, will be kept from want the remainder of her days.

She extended a welcome hand to a reporter, and invited him in.

"I didn't expect to find you alone," said the caller.

The aged woman brushed her hand across her almost sightless eyes, gave a little sigh, and then, with an attempt to smile, said: "Oh, no danger about that. No one ever comes to see me."

When Charles H. Haas died, his widow collected $5000 insurance on his life and placed it in a bank. Then she said the daily, which she and her husband had conducted for many years. It brought $1000, although she says it was worth more. This, too, was put in the bank.

She owned lots on West Eighth street. One she sold, and the proceeds, together with other money, she also placed in a bank, she says, without security or any paper to prove the deposit.

Mrs. Haas is a devout Christian. The read, and with that confiding simplicity which has ever been a characteristic of her gentle make-up, she signed the paper which the agent handed her. Her falling illness prevented her from reading it.

Not long after that one whom she had confided in called and presented the paper, saying: "Here is the document you signed. A little while ago, I told you that on account of a mistake having been made in that document it was necessary for her to sign an amended will."

Through the intervention of friends, Mrs. Haas had this document nullified, and regained her slight possessions, but not until she had been reduced almost to penury, and the Pioneer had taken a hand.

Now her friends are endeavoring to secure a settlement with the church and otherwise recover some of the property she has lost through her generosity and the impositions practiced upon her.

Despite her disappointments and losses, the old lady still retains her trust in men, and, above it, her trust in God. Throughout the long days she sits by her cottage window, cheerful, though alone and almost helpless. She cannot read books, but she reads the beauties of nature, and her wrinkled face breaks into smiles when an infrequent visitor comes.

The devoted and almost friendless old woman, has one faithful attendant. It is a wet, but sunny golden hair, the baby of a neighbor. The little one dandles up the few steps to the cottage door and prattles away, while a withered hand pets the tiny head.

INFLUENCE

MENTAL AND MORAL.

The state of the mother during gestation may influence the future of the child. The mother's mind and emotions are the most important factors in the development of the child's mental and moral character.
